“...in reference to the projected business...”  (David Copperfield, Chapter 2)

The Dickens Fellowship was recently contacted by British Pathé Ltd, who have uncovered a number of rare Dickensian newsreels in their film archive, covering everything from a 1918 memorial service for The Inimitable to the opening of a Boz-themed restaurant in the 1960s. Clips are freely viewable on the following website:

British Pathé’s Media Officer, Mr Jack Cullen, would like to hear from any Fellowship members who can give further information about the clips. Please contact him at: British Pathé Ltd, The Media Centre, 3-8 Carburton Street, London, W1W 5AJ, Tel: 0207 665 8349

“I have very particular business....”  (Pickwick Papers, Chapter 20)

Thanks to those members who have opted to receive the London Particular by email. The Management Committee would, however, like more members to take the e-version of the newsletter, thereby saving on trees and costs. To make the change, simply send an email, showing your name, and the email address to which you would like your London Particular to be sent, to: stephenjarvis@hotmail.com
Clearly mark the subject-heading of the email: “London Particular Email, Please”

This forehead is useful in introducing characters who appear in an extraordinary adaptation of A Christmas Carol notified to us by Risa Yamamoto of Alexandria, Virginia. Yes, the Carol has been translated into Klingon, the language of Star Trek, and performed as a stage play. To see a clip of the performance, go to: www.kontraband.com/videos/20886/A-Klingon-Christmas-Carol/

Still on the subject of the Carol, Derek Mortimer noted a letter published in The Economist of 17th April:

“Sir – With the rise of e-book publishing you asked, “Will bookshops disappear completely?” (Edited Out, 3rd April.) Last December, I went shopping for copies of Charles Dickens’s works as Christmas gifts. I asked a young bookstore clerk where I might find A Christmas Carol and she steered me confidently towards a rack of DVDs. On that basis I fear the answer to your question is yes. Dave Erchull, Tucson.”

“It was...proposed to the...meeting that a change should be made....” (Household Words, No 311, 1856)

Accompanying this issue of the London Particular is the Notice and Agenda for the 104th Annual General Meeting of the Fellowship, to be held at 9 am, Saturday 24th July, at the Eastbourne Conference. Attention is drawn to the proposed revision of the membership fees and subscriptions.

Following the recent death of Sir John Dankworth, the jazz musician and composer, Allan Clack wrote to the London Particular, to remind us that Sir John recorded an album in 1963 called What the Dickens! with tracks such as The Artful Dodger and Dodson and Fogg. The musician once said: “Dickens is the only author I ever really read. The diversity of characters left an indelible mark on my memory.”

WE HAVE JUST HEARD THAT THE FELLOWSHIP’S TREASURER, GEORGE WRIGHT, IS RETIRING FROM THE ROLE AFTER MANY YEARS OF SERVICE. JOAN DICKS WOULD LIKE TO HEAR FROM ANYONE WHO WOULD BE WILLING TO UNDERTAKE THE MANAGEMENT OF THE DAY-TO-DAY FINANCES OF THE FELLOWSHIP, OR WHO CAN RECOMMEND A SUITABLE CANDIDATE WHO MIGHT BE PERSUADED! THE ROLE REQUIRES BOOK-KEEPING SKILLS. Please contact joan@dickshg.freeserve.co.uk

DICKENS IN THE NEWS

Author Martin Baum has recently translated Dickens’s novels into “yoof-speak”. His new book Oi, Mate, Gimme Some More gives a fresh take on all of the novels in just 158 pages. Thus, A Tale of Two Cities becomes A Tale of Two Turfs and begins “It was da best of times, and not being funny or nuffing, but was da worst of times, to be honest”, while in David Copperfield, Micawber now advises: “Just you remember that no matter what somefing will turn up coz it always does and that is what I’m saying, you get me bro?”

Mr Baum was previously known for his adaptation of Shakespeare, To Be or Not to Be, Innit.

A Final Thought....
